April 2005

Before two years a band from Italy releases their latest so far album with the title "Istinto". As you can see at the tracklist everything is in Italian, from the song titles to the lyrics and the info sheet. For the first two i haven't problem in addition i adore to hear bands that sings in their mother tongue. But i believe at least in the info sheet you could have it in two languages. Back to music now, Conqueror delivers to our ears a very good piece of progressive music, with well worked compositions, very clever guitar riffs and interesting guitar solos. Also Simona Rigano has a very lovely and warm voice which gives a plus to the whole result. The addition of keyboards is very good because the band have use it very clever inside their songs. It is needless to say that the production and the sound is almost excellent. If have already bored with the stuff from Dream Theater and you want to hear something fresh in this scene you can check the stuff from Conqueror. This band worth's your attention; just give a gift to yourself. I am really waiting for their next work.
